Tim McKnight Takes the Lead at the Jackson Kitchen Shop

Jackson - With more than 22 years of service to Jackson area customers out of the Kitchen Shop store, Tim McKnight takes over leadership responsibility in the Jackson store. "I am very excited about my new responsibilities," said McKnight. "Following a great example like George Dailey, who recently retired after 42 years with the company, means I have big shoes to fill. Even so, there are so many new products and trends in the kitchen and bath industry I am excited to bring even greater understanding of these assets to our whole team in the Jackson store."

Tim has assembled legions of satisfied customers during his two+ decades, and has created kitchen designs that have been featured in some very interesting places. For example, a project for Michigan native Ted Nugent was featured on a TV show called 'CRIBS' which showcases homes of famous music performers.

The Jackson Kitchen Shop store is the crown jewel of The Kitchen Shop retail chain. The store is the largest in the Kitchen Shop family and boasts the inclusion of a retail store, called Classic Flooring, designed to assist customers with flooring, tile and window covering options to complete a home project. The Jackson store is also considered one of the largest kitchen and bath design showrooms in Michigan.

The Kitchen Shop is a family owned business, home-based out of Marshall, Michigan. There are retail locations in Lansing, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Marshall. To learn more about the products and services available through the Kitchen Shops, visit: www.thekitchenshops.com

"We want to assure the Jackson area Kitchen Shop customers that we are here to serve, including those customers that may have turned to George Dailey for assistance in the past. And, of course new customers are always welcome," concluded McKnight.
